irene koronas

the weight of thread

I worry about division I worry about the weight of thread very little of the earth's surface is flat

Frozen water splits apart rocks, thick glass tumblers zones of weakness even plants take root in cracks I worry about being flat irene koronas is an artist who writes poetry. she is the poetry editor for Wilderness House Literary Review and Ibbetson Street Press. She has published a full length book of poems, self portrait drawn from many and 10 chapbooks.